TAX MARKET IN ITALY: 2024 OVERVIEW

By LC Publishing Group

The Italian tax law market has experienced significant evolution over the past year, shaped by ambitious regulatory reforms, digitalization initiatives, and a dynamic economic environment. As Italy seeks to modernize its tax regime and attract investment, legal and advisory firms have found both challenges and opportunities in adapting to a rapidly shifting landscape.

Regulatory reform and policy shifts

In 2024, Italy continued implementing an expansive tax reform agenda aimed at streamlining the system and fostering economic growth. Central to these reforms were efforts to simplify income tax brackets, improve taxpayer compliance, and reduce corporate tax burdens. These initiatives reflect a broader governmental push to increase the competitiveness of Italy's economy within the EU and globally.

The reforms have placed a strong emphasis on transparency and digital administration. A key development was the expansion of mandatory e-invoicing obligations to smaller businesses and independent professionals, reinforcing Italy's leading position in digital tax compliance within the European Union.

In parallel, Italy has deepened its alignment with international tax standards, particularly under the OECD's Base Erosion and Profit Shifting (BEPS) framework. Strengthened transfer pricing rules and the implementation of EU-wide initiatives, such as the DAC7 directive, have increased the demand for international tax structuring and compliance services.

Market dynamics and emerging trends

1. Cross-border advisory demand:

Amid growing complexity in international tax regulation, Italian firms are experiencing heightened demand for cross-border advisory services. Multinational clients require tailored solutions to navigate evolving compliance requirements and mitigate tax risks.

2. Technology-driven compliance:

Tax law firms and accounting practices are accelerating investments in digital tools, including AI-enhanced tax software and automated compliance platforms. These tools are increasingly essential for staying agile in a fast-changing regulatory landscape and meeting client expectations for efficiency and accuracy.

3. Transactional tax work:

A surge in private equity activity and corporate transactions across sectors such as energy, infrastructure, and tech has fueled demand for tax due diligence, structuring, and post-deal advisory. Legal tax teams are playing a critical role in navigating fiscal aspects of deal-making in Italy.

Key players in the legal market

Leading Italian firms such as Chiomenti, Legance, Gianni & Origoni, GPBL and Maisto e Associati continue to dominate the tax advisory landscape, offering deep expertise across domestic and international matters. Global players like PwC, Deloitte, and EY maintain a strong presence, particularly in areas requiring multidisciplinary advisory and international network.

These firms are actively expanding service offerings to include ESG-related tax advisory, wealth management planning, and litigation support, reflecting the diversification of client needs.

Challenges and structural issues

Despite progress in reform and digitalization, Italy's tax system still faces notable challenges. Regulatory uncertainty, particularly around potential windfall or wealth taxation measures, has complicated long-term planning for businesses and high-net-worth individuals. Additionally, procedural delays in tax dispute resolution continue to hamper the efficiency of the legal system, despite ongoing efforts to modernize court processes.

Opportunities and growth areas

The push toward sustainability has opened new avenues in green tax incentives and ESG-focused advisory. Law firms are increasingly supporting clients in leveraging tax credits and complying with environmental tax obligations.

Real estate and private wealth planning are also emerging as growth segments, particularly for firms advising international clients relocating to or investing in Italy. Recent changes to inheritance and property tax rules have increased the demand for sophisticated legal guidance in these areas.

Outlook for 2025

Looking ahead, the Italian tax law market is poised for continued transformation. As regulatory frameworks evolve and digital innovation accelerates, tax professionals will be central to helping clients navigate both compliance and strategic planning. Firms that can combine legal acumen with technological capabilities and international expertise will be best positioned to lead in this competitive and complex environment.

MARKET TRENDS

Team and Gender Equality

Based on the data collected by the research team, firms active in the Italian tax market this year had, on average, 76 professionals per firm and 13 partners. Naturally, this average includes Big Four firms and super-boutiques, which significantly raise the overall numbers.

Just over 42 out of every 100 professionals are women, and nearly 22 out of every 100 partners are women — an improvement compared to last year, when there were slightly more female professionals (almost 43%) but significantly fewer female partners (less than 19%).

Looking specifically at the firms that provided data for both years, the number of female professionals rose from 863 to 891, with 72 female partners last year and 77 this year. While these are positive figures in absolute terms, they are less so in relative terms: the percentage of female professionals in these firms decreased from 43.39% to 42.92%, while the percentage of female partners increased from 21.95% to 22.78%.

Revenue in the Tax Practice

In 2024, we estimated an average revenue of €2.07 million per partner. In 2025, this figure increased to €2.22 million, marking a 7.1% growth.

Focusing only on firms that provided data for both years, the number of partners increased from 328 to 338, allowing us to estimate a system-wide growth of 10.37%.

In 2024, mid-sized companies led the tax market with a 40% share, followed by large companies at 35.5% and small firms at 24.5%. This year, large players account for 37%, mid-sized enterprises for 35.6%, and small enterprises for 27.4%.

Areas of Activity

In 2025, the most significant areas of activity in the tax practice market are advisory (24%), extraordinary transactions (15.7%), and wealth management for high-net-worth individuals (11%). Last year, the top three were advisory at 17.3%, litigation at 14.8%, and extraordinary transactions at 13.2%.

While there haven't been drastic shifts, some changes in the areas of activity are interesting and noteworthy: advisory grew by 6.7%, while litigation dropped by 5.1%. Private wealth management gained 2.8%, and M&A increased by 2.5%, whereas transfer pricing declined by 1.2%, and international taxation fell by 1.2% within the EU and 1.7% outside the EU.
